TEMPORARY VISITORS:
Section 3 (2), Immigration Act of 1924.

Immigration laws and regulations provide for your entrance to the United States under the following conditions:

You have been accorded admission until Nov 9 1938.
Should you find it necessary to remain in the United States beyond the date above given, you should apply for extension of stay, such application to be forwarded to the District Director of Immigration and Naturalization at Honolulu, T. H., not less than fifteen or more than thirty days prior to the date above mentioned. Applications for extension of stay should be made on Forms 639 and are obtainable at all immigration stations in the United States.

Should you proceed into foreign territory contiguous to the United States for a temporary visit and thereafter return to the United States, such departure will not be considered as affecting the period for which you were originally admitted.

Should you remain in the United States for a longer period of time than is authorized, or should you fail to maintain the specific status under which admission was accorded, you will thereby become subject to arrest and deportation.

VIOLATION OF STATUS:

Paragraph 3 of Subdivision C of Immigration Rule No. 25 reads:

> "Any alien admitted temporarily to the United States as a non-immigrant under subdivision 2 of Section 3 of the Immigration Act of 1924 shall be considered as having failed to maintain his status as that term is used in Section 15 of that act if after having been admitted as a tourist or visitor for pleasure he engages in any business or occupation or employment or if after having been admitted for business he engages in any business or occupation or employment other than that given as a reason for his request for temporary admission."

Section 14, Immigration Act of 1924 reads:

> "Any alien who at any time after entering the United States is found * * * * to have remained therein for a longer time than permitted under this act or regulations made thereunder, shall be taken into custody and deported in the same manner as provided for in Sections 19 and 20 of the Immigration Act of 1917."
